Audubon
 Patterson Park Audubon Center is a local leader in bird conservation, environmental education, and community revitalization. Audubon offers nature exploration in Baltimore City parks and collaborates with neighbors to restore green spaces with gardens that provide food and nesting materials for birds. Patterson Park is an oasis for birds to rest and retreat during migration, and we welcome you to visit our bird-friendly gardens to experience these important habitats.

Friends of Patterson Park
 The Friends of Patterson Park works to ensure the park's vitality and encourage its use and appreciation by its diverse neighbors and visitors. This member-supported, non-profit organization provides free recreational, cultural and arts programming, engages hundreds of volunteers to care for the park, works to preserve historic park features, including the Observatory (1892) and the Fountain (1965), serves as a liaison between local neighborhoods and Baltimore City, and advocates for resources for the park. The Friends has its offices at the 1808 Park Superintendent's house and Visitors Center, known as "the white house". For event calendar & more information, visit pattersonpark.com.
